Table of Contents

Great Beginnings ............................................................................................................................ 4

Spotlight on Reading  Nonfiction: Sharing Stories ............................................................... 6

Spotlight on Language .................................................................................................................. 18

Spotlight on Content
- Language Arts  Characters in a Story .................................................................................. 20
- Math  Solid Shapes .................................................................................................................. 22
- Social Studies  Transportation .............................................................................................. 24
- Science  Simple Machines ....................................................................................................... 26

Project  Writing Your Story ............................................................................................................ 28

Glossary ........................................................................................................................................ 30

Picture Dictionary ........................................................................................................................ 36
I may be sad or silly,
I may be false or true.
I may tell of mighty kings

Or heroes just like you.
What am I?

Topics to explore:
- telling stories
- solid shapes
- ways to travel
- tools in science
Spotlight on Reading

Key Words

- world
- history
- myths
- authors
People everywhere share stories.
Stories come from all over the world.
People tell stories in many ways.
People speak or sing.
Sometimes a story has no words,
People dance or move.
Stories can teach you.
Some stories tell about history.
Some stories are about choices. You learn about right and wrong.
Myths are stories from long ago. Myths tell about gods and heroes.
Myths try to explain the world.
How did the world begin?
Families have their own stories.
Old and young people talk together.
Authors make their stories into books. Then, more people can enjoy the stories.
Checking

Choose the best picture to answer each question.

1. Which story is about history?

   !Books

2. What is a way to share a story?

   !Images

3. How do people save stories?

   !Images
Summarizing

- Match the main ideas and detail pictures.
  Use them to talk about telling stories.

  People tell stories in many ways.

  Stories can teach you.

  Myths are stories from long ago.

  Families have their own stories.

  Authors make their stories into books.

Reflecting

- Think of a story you know.
  How did you learn the story?
  Make a picture about it.
  Label your picture.

Grandmother

book

me

The Amazing Goat

goat